OLD GEORGIA LAW UPHELD IN CASE OF ANGELO HERNDON

State Supreme Court Rules
Anti-Insurrection Statute
Applicable to Negro Communist.

HE IS UNDER 18-YEAR
CHANGING SENTENCE

Decision Reverses Atlanta Judge's Opinion That Act Is Too Vague to Be Enforced.

By the Associated Press.

ATLANTA, Ga., June 12.—The Supreme Court of Georgia today upheld the old anti-insurrection statute under which Angelo Herndon, young Negro Communist, was sentenced to 18 to 20 years in the main gaol.

A ruling of Superior Judge Hugh M. Dorsey of Fulton (Atlanta) County that the statute was too vague to be enforced was reversed.

The Court's Decision.

The Supreme Court in upholding the statute ruled:

"Neither as expressed, nor as it was construed by this court, is the above statute void as violative of the fourteenth amendment of the Federal Constitution for the alleged reasons (1) that it denies and unduly restricts freedom of speech and of assembly; (2) that it is too vague and indefinite to provide a sufficiently ascertainable standard of guilt."

"Neither is the statute so construed as violative of provisions of the Constitution of Georgia which provide 'no person shall be deprived of life, liberty or property except by due process of law' for the same above alleged reasons."

"The court erred in the habeas corpus ruling in refusing to remand the prisoner to the custody of the officers."

The Georgia Supreme Court decision was unanimous.

Defense Attorneys Appeal.

Defense attorneys announced they would be taken to the United States Supreme Court. It was taken to this tribunal a year ago but the court refused to accept the appeal.

Herndon, a Cincinnati Negro, was convicted of an "attempt" to incite insurrection under a statute passed in 1871. The original insurrection act, passed in 1866, provided for the death penalty "or, if the jury refused to acquit, a prison sentence of five to 20 years. Insurrection was defined as any combined resistance to lawful authority of the State with intent to the denial thereof when it is manifested or intended to be manifested by acts of violence."

Herndon, whom various organizations have championed since his arrest in 1932, is in New York, free on $7000 bond furnished by the International Labor Defense.

Circumstances of Arrest.

Herndon was arrested in the Atlanta postoffice about a week after 1000 families, 600 of them white, had asked for better relief grants. Herndon admitted organizing the appeal. Communist literature was found in his room, and the State charged that it advocated an uprising. Chief among the prosecution's contentions was that Herndon planned to set up a Negro soviet republic in the "black belt" from Virginia to Texas.

Judge Dorsey's ruling, which the Supreme Court reversed today, was given on an application for release on writ of habeas corpus. The judge held the old Georgia law, "too indefinite and violative of the 'due process' clause of the Federal Constitution."

13 Alleged Communists Fined $100 Each in Atlanta.

Eight white persons and five Negroes arrested last month in a raid in what police said was a communistic meeting in Atlanta, were fined $100 each on a disorderly conduct charge yesterday.

The 13 also were charged with offense under the old Georgia law, but Judge A. W. Cawley held there was no evidence to substantiate the accusation.

TOO MANY WORMS FOR FISHING

Ontario Anglers Say Caterpillar
Hordes Spoil Sport.

SUBURB, Ontario, June 12.—Fishermen and farmers complain that with a million tent caterpillars crossing creeks, rivers and lakes, the fish are so gorged they will not bite. Nearly all sections of Northern Ontario report the worst caterpillar visitation in years. The worms made their first appearance four or five years ago and since succeeding years they have been more numerous and destructive.

For the first time caterpillars this year have included farm crops in their diet. Formerly they fed only leaves. An eight-mile front was advanced by a band of Balfour and Rayside Townships.

THREE 'ACCIDENT' DEATHS FOUND TO BE MURDER

Poison in Bodies of Massachusetts Victims, All of Whom Died in Springfield Vicinity.

By the Associated Press.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., June 12.—Declaring there had been nearly 50 "suspicious" deaths in Ludlow, Chicopee and the Indian Orchard section of Springfield, Trial Justice George B. Haas of Ludlow called yesterday for a "thorough-going investigation, not only of these present cases, but others over a course of years."

"By 'suspicious,' Justice Haas continued, 'I mean many of the victims were insured by outsiders for amounts they themselves would have been unable to carry.'"

District Attorney Thomas F. Moriarty, directing the investigation of what Justice Haas called an "insurance racket," centered his inquiry on the three most recent deaths.

Three Latest Deaths.

Frank Halgas, 50 years old, of Ludlow, was found April 4, lying in the street, apparently killed by an automobile.

Frank Krol, also of Ludlow, apparently fell down a flight of stairs to his death at his boarding house May 25.

Jacob Znoj, 40, of Chicopee, died April 22, apparently of a heart attack.

But police officials erased the early report of "accidental death" in each case when routine autopsies revealed poison.

"The pathological examination," declared the District Attorney, "revealed enough of the same poison in each of the three men's bodies to cause death."

Suits by Insurance Company.

The Boston Mutual Life Insurance Co. today filed two suits to recover a life insurance policy on the life of Krol, alleging false statements were made on the application for the policy. Krol applied for insurance May 30, 1934, according to the suit and asked that the insurance be made payable to his estate. On Sept. 4, the bill alleges, the policy was assigned to Walter J. Wadas and Teresa Dynak. The insurance company alleged Krol, in applying for insurance, denied previous applications had been rejected.

The petition alleged Krol had no insurance interests and that Wadas and Miss Dynak had been named in the original application, the insurance would have been denied.

Trial Justice Haas, who presided at the inquest into Halgas' death, reported to Superior Court, that the death was "murderous act which cannot be mitigated by the circumstances of the victim's death."

At Chicopee, Trial Justice J. J. Kirby held an inquest Thursday into the death of Znoj. Seven witnesses were heard. Spectators were barred. Witnesses' testimony was kept secret. A report will be filed soon at Springfield.

Krol Inquest Pending.

Still pending is the inquest into the death of Krol. That comes under the jurisdiction of Justice Haas. All three victims—Halgas, Krol and Znoj—were Polish. They lived, as do many of their countrymen, in the thickly populated flats of

John D. M. Hamilton of Kansas Takes Over Duties as New Chairman of National Committee.

By the Associated Press.

CLEVELAND, June 12.—The heads of the Republican ticket, Gov. Alf M. Landon of Kansas and Col. Frank Knox of Chicago, and the Republican National Committee's board of strategy will meet at the Governor's home in Topeka, Kan., on Tuesday.

John D. M. Hamilton, who organized the Landon-for-President campaign and nominated the Kansas Governor at the convention, was elected chairman of the Republican National Committee yesterday, succeeding Henry F. Fletcher of Pennsylvania.

A subcommittee, appointed by Hamilton, was authorized to name all other officers and subcommittees.

The National Committee met, following its custom, a few hours after adjournment of the convention, and was called to order by Ralph E. Williams of Oregon, senior member.

"Our first order of business," Williams said, "is the election of a new national chairman. I talked by telephone today with Gov. Landon and he requested the election of John D. M. Hamilton of Kansas."

Charles D. Hilles of New York promptly placed Hamilton's name in nomination. Members from several states hastened to second the nomination. Hamilton's was the only name proposed and a unanimous ballot was cast for him.

Hamilton Takes the Gavel.

Even before he was elected chairman, the young, red-headed Kansan, his faced lined from the fatigue of the convention, proposed a resolution, which was adopted, authorizing the appointment of the governing subcommittee.

Elected, Hamilton took the gavel, named the sub-committee and then outlined briefly his ideas for the campaign.

"We are going into a vigorous campaign and a hard campaign. We expect the Republicans to do their duty," he said. "There are going to be a lot of mistakes and errors of judgment made because we're going to do things in the line of a new national chairman. In these errors and a realization that they were made in an effort to elect a Republican President."

Those appointed to the sub-committee were:

Hamilton, Williams and Fletcher, officials; George A. Ball, Indiana; Mrs. Bertha Bair, Illinois; Robert P. Burroughs, New Hampshire; R. B. Creager, Texas; J. Will Taylor, Tennessee; Mrs. Paul Fitzsimmons, Rhode Island; Walter S. Hallanan, West Virginia; Hilles, New York; Mrs. John E. Hillman, Colorado; Daniel Pomeroy, New Jersey; Mrs. H. H. Sayre, Oklahoma; Mrs. Marion M. Scranton, Pennsylvania; Harrison E. Spangler, Iowa; Earl Warren, California; Ezra Whitla, Idaho, and Joseph W. Martin Jr., Massachusetts.

Waiting for Democratic Platform.

What was a question whether the unanimity of the convention could be maintained, and some reason to believe that it could not, a brief breathing spell was in prospect. Gov. Landon, the head of the ticket, is known to be waiting for the Democratic platform to be adopted at the convention opening in Philadelphia June 23, before heading into his campaign.

Hopes of some of the Republican leaders to have an immense Landon-Knox notification ceremony were abandoned before the Republican convention met. Landon wants a "front porch" affair, probably in Topeka, in August. Some of his fellow townsmen at Independence, Kan., want to hold it there.

Representative Bertrand H. Snell of New York, Democratic chairman, will notify Landon, and Senator Frederick Steiwer of Oregon, temporary chairman, will notify Knox.

These ceremonies may be among the topics Landon and Knox will take up when they confer in Topeka Tuesday. Knox, as the No. 2 man, has placed himself under Landon's orders, saying, "We go forward to victory."

ST. JOHN'S, N. F., June 12.—On reports of a food shortage among the islanders, Newfoundland's secretary of public health ordered two weeks' rations for fishermen in the town of Trepassy. Thousands of others were said to be in need of assistance in scattered sections of the island.

General distress has resulted from storms which wrecked fishing fleets last summer and from winter blizzards. Fishermen were unable to obtain credit from usual sources, and the burden of their support was thrown on the government.

Last week eight persons were prosecuted for stealing food in Trepassy.

Gain Admittance to Opposition Meeting.

By the Associated Press.

FREE CITY OF DANZIG, June 12.—A Nazi storm trooper was killed and 50 persons were injured today in one of the worst political brawls in Danzig's recent history.

The combatants were representatives of various opposition parties who met under the auspices of the German Nationalists to establish a united front against the Nazis, now the party in power in the Danzig Senate. Nazis obtained admittance to the meeting and mingled among the 1000 persons in the audience.

Suddenly fighting broke out. Men milled across the floor. Some turned suddenly on their neighbors, striking with their fists and kicking.

All the furniture in the hall was smashed. Chairs were wielded as clubs. Rattings on the stairways were torn off and used as weapons. The marines, it was said, were fighting friends or enemies. Many women were in the hall. Their screams added to the terror.

Police restored order by charging into the struggling mass with fixed bayonets. Every ambulance in the city was used to take injured to hospitals.

Meanwhile, the office windows of the opposition newspaper, Volkszeitung, were smashed.

14 ARRAIGNED IN BLACK LEGION MURDER PLOTS

11 Accused of Entering Agreement to Kill Editor
Who Fought Re-election of Town Mayor.

SIGNED IN BLOOD,
DAYTON DEAN SAYS

State Leader and Ousted Aid of Prosecutor Among Accused — 3 Named in Second Conspiracy.

By the Associated Press.
DETROIT, Mich., June 13.—Fourteen men were arraigned today on charges of conspiracy to murder political opponents of the Black Legion.

Eleven of the men and another who was not in court were charged with a plot against the life of Arthur F. Kingsley, editor of a Highland Park Community newspaper,
and the other three were charged with a similar plot against William W. Voisine, Mayor of suburban Ecorse.

All stood mute and pleas of not guilty were entered for them. Their bonds were set at $25,000 each, and all were returned to jail.

Among those arraigned were N.
Ray Markland, recently suspended investigator for Prosecutor Duncan
C. McCrea, whom Kingsley's paper opposed for re-election as Mayor of Highland Park; Leslie
J. Black, president of the Wolverine Republican League and a suspended clerk in Common Pleas Court, and Arthur Lupp, State commander of the Black Legion.

Another in Hospital.
Roy Hepner, held as a member of a Black Legion arson squad, and the fifteenth defendant named in the murder-conspiracy, was not in court, explaining that he is in Receiving Hospital where he has been treated for injuries received in a fall.

The warrants were issued after Dayton Dean, "executioner" in the killing of Charles A. Poole, made a statement relating that a squad of Black Legion members
signed in blood a pact to kill Kingsley.

"I was one of three men assigned to get Kingsley and alternates were drawn to see that we went through with the job," McCrea said. Dean told him, explaining that if they failed their lives would be in the hands of fellow members.

"The closest we got to him was one night when he got in his car
alone and we started after him," Dean said. "He got wise and we must have chased him five or six miles before he finally threw us off
the trail."

Editor Can't Recall Incident.
Kingsley could recall no instance in which he was pursued, as Dean described, or any specific threats received from the Black Legion. He said a man told him two years ago that he had been forced to join the Black Legion at the point of a gun,
and he advised him to tell his story
to the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

Later, Kingsley said, his informant told him he had warned Black Legion officers that he had disclosed their secrets to Government agents.

"Evidently they concluded then that they didn't dare try to kill me," Kingsley said.
Dean previously had said he accompanied "Colonel" Harvey Davis, Ervin D. Lee and John Bannerman, all of whom are charged with Poole's murder, on a trip to Ecorse to attempt to kill Voisine
after the village Mayor had escaped unhurt when the Black Legion bombed his home last summer.

Roy Hepner and Clarence C.
Frye, both held as members of the Black Legion arson squad, confirmed Dean's statement of the plot against Kingsley, the prosecutor
said.

WIDOW OF HERBERT HADLEY JR. WED TO REYNOLD S. SCHOPP

Surprise Ceremony Performed Monday at City Hall by Justice of Peace.

Mrs. Catherine Hadley, widow of Herbert S. Hadley Jr., son of former Gov. Hadley, and Reynold S. Schopp, son of the late Commissioner Schopp, were married Monday at City Hall in a surprise wedding, the bride's mother, Mrs. Mary E. DeHaire, said today.

The ceremony was performed by a justice of the peace, Mrs. De-Haire said she was first informed of it in a telephone call by her daughter after it was over. The pair will reside at Bridgeton on their return from their honeymoon to New York.

It was the third marriage for the bride, who is 33 years old. Her first ended in divorce in 1928. Her second husband, Mr. Hadley, died in 1934. He was a former Associate Prosecuting Attorney here. She is a descendant, through her paternal grandmother, of Alexander McNair, first Governor of Missouri. Schopp, who is 40, formerly was a real estate salesman, but is not now employed, Mrs. DeHaire
said.

CLERK FINED FOR FIRING AIR PISTOL INTO AUTO

Ernest Ohms, Owner of Car, Thinks James Sinas, St. Charles,
Had Grudge Over Collision.
James Sinas, 19-year-old clerk, 3729A Cottage avenue, was fined $5
and costs today by Justice of the Peace Joseph Mahom, St. Charles, for firing an air pistol last night
into the automobile of Ernest Ohms at St. Charles. He pleaded guilty but made no explanation of the act.

Neither Ohms nor two passengers in his car were injured by BB broke from the air pistol which broke a tail light and rear window. He said he thought the attack was to satisfy a grudge over a collision last month between his car and one driven by Sinas. Two youths arrested with Sinas were released.

SALOON KEEPER UNDER BOND AFTER VERDICT OF HOMICIDE

Police Testify Arthur Donovan Admitted Shooting Edwin Davis
Thursday Night.

A Coroner's verdict of homicide holding Arthur Donovan, 2003 Arsenal street, for the grand jury in the killing of Edwin Davis, owner of a saloon at 5909 Lillian avenue,
was returned at the inquest today.
Police testified Donovan had admitted shooting Davis after Davis had shot and killed Donovan's friend, Joseph P. Kenny, and then threatened him with a revolver. A verdict of homicide in the killing of Kenny by Davis was returned also.

Donovan, owner of a saloon at 4326 Delmar boulevard in which Kenny was employed as bartender, was held under $5000 bond. He did not testify at the inquest. Those who were in Davis' saloon when the shooting occurred Thursday night testified there was a quarrel, but they were unable to say who did the shooting.

Davis and Kenny, police said,
quarreled over a beating Kenny
was supposed to have given several weeks ago to a woman friend of Davis.

EIGHT OF 75 DELINQUENT ON LIQUOR LICENSE ARRESTED

Deputy Excise Commissioner Warns
Others; Penalty $5 to $500 a Day.

Eight of 75 liquor dealers delinquent in city license payments were arrested yesterday and Deputy Excise Commissioner Carroll Berkley issued a warning to the remainder
that they were in danger of arrest.
The delinquencies began about five days ago.

Most of those delinquent are saloon-keepers but some are dealers in 5 per cent beer. The penalty for failure to have a paid-up license, on conviction in Police Court, is a fine of $5 to $500 for each day
of unlicensed operation.

There are 1135 licensed saloon-keepers and 550 licensed dealers in 5 per cent beer who have obtained six-month permits at $150 and $43.75, respectively, Berkley announced.

HOOVERVILLE SHACKS SLOWLY COMING DOWN

No More Building Permitted
and Many of the Tenants
Now Are at Work.

Bit by bit the shacks in "Hoover-ville," the depression colony along the Mississippi waterfront, are coming down and it is visited no longer by curious crowds.

An edict of the Dickmann administration that no more building would be permitted, enforced by Harbor Master Thomas M. Byrne, whose riverfront domain includes
the colony, has cut its size in half,
while many of the remaining tenants are not altogether jobless.
Some have WPA jobs, some are peddlers, a few have found work in a private industry.

An old guard, a scattering few, remain who are jobless and have seen no evidence that times are any better than "since we holed up here during the Hoover administration."

Signs of Better Times.

But there are visible signs of relative prosperity among the crudely erected shacks that remain, strung out along the railroad tracks at irregular clumps from Chouteau avenue to Russell boulevard. Some have radios, a few phonographs, on: even has a piano. And one or two soft drink stands, patronized
by other members of the colony,
have opened.

Time was when the shacks
crowded close to the water's edge.
But high water and the city administration's policy have eliminated them. As soon as a shack is vacated it is usually torn down—
and nothing may be erected to replace it.

Many who deserted their houses
when the water rose returned to find them torn down. Occasionally a man who sneaks to establish residency will "desert up" a shack overnight.

No one has been evicted from Hooverville, Harbor Master Byrne
said, unless of such a character
that police suspect his departure
has additional homes are authorized. Occasionally, he said, a vacated shack will be allowed to stand if someone who has no place else to go desires to occupy it.

Character Has Changed.
But the character of the colony has changed. The majority of its citizens seek free rent to eke out what little they have rather than a shelter as a last resort for the desperate. There are fewer white families and more Negroes in the colony, which numbers perhaps 300 persons.

Three churches, not much larger than the shacks which surround them, have been constructed, but no longer is there an unofficial
"mayor." Harbor Master Byrne sends an assistant to inspect the colony at regular intervals while its members often go to his office
to consult him about everything from domestic dilemmas to the sins
and omissions of the neighbors.

Organizations.

A resolution advocating abolition of the St. Clair County Board of Assessors and Board of Review
was adopted last night by the St.
Clair County Federation of Civic Bodies in a meeting at Belleville.
Speakers contended that assess-

vocated a return to the system of an petition with 16,000 signatures would be necessary to place the issue before the voters at the fall election.

JUDGE CAUSES THE ARREST OF MAYOR OF PITTSBURGH

Directs District Attorney to Charge
McNair With Malfeasance
and Misfeasance.

By the Associated Press.
PITTSBURGH, Pa., June 13.— Judge Ralph E. Smith directed the district attorney today to swear
out a warrant charging Mayor William N. McNair with malfeasance and misfeasance in office. The District Attorney acted promptly.
The Mayor was arrested and taken before Judge Smith.

The order came after McNair virtually stopped business at Pittsburgh's 13 police stations because Judge Smith had directed a grand jury investigation of police conditions. Officers seized the records of half a dozen magistrates and Mc-Nair said they were unable to do business or send prisoners to jail without their records. The Mayor himself is a magistrate and the grand jury order for records included those of his court.

Several men, charged with drunkenness, were arraigned before McNair and he told Police Lieut.
Walter Mullen to take the prisoners to Judge Smith, saying: "I wonder how he will like that."

Judge Smith sent for the Mayor
but he failed to appear and the order for the warrant was then issued.

period for appeal by the owners
has passed. Recently 23 machines of the pin ball variety were judged to be gambling devices and destroyed.

TEA ROOM HOSTESS FOUND MURDERED

Miss Nella Penunzi, 23, Shot and Left in Ditch Near St. Charles, Ill.

By the Associated Press.

ST. CHARLES, Ill., June 13.—
Shot through the head and apparently beaten, Miss Nella Penunzi, 23 years old, manager of the Red Parrott tea room at the Club Arcade here, was found dead on the Dunham gravel road about two miles north of St. Charles in the Wayne residential district at dawn today. (St. Charles is 35 miles west of Chicago.)

The body was found in a ditch
by Sheriff J. J. Kampmeyer and deputies, about a mile south of the spot where her automobile, a bullet hole in the top, had been found about an hour earlier by a night patrolman.

The Sheriff was looking for Rinaldo Di Pietro, 30, for questioning after talking with relatives of the woman at Geneva, Ill. Kampmeyer said Di Pietro had been ordered by the family to stop paying attentions to her.

Miss Penunzi had told her family,
the Sheriff said, that Di Pietro telephoned her yesterday and said he was leaving for New York and wanted to talk to her. She left the tea room about 8:30 p. m.
Riziero Paul, Chicago hardware
dealer, a half-brother of the girl, told the Sheriff Di Pietro had tried to borrow a revolver from him
Thursday, saying a man had annoyed him. Paul said he refused the request.

Miss Penunzi's car was blood-stained and showed evidence of struggle.

The Sheriff said St. Charles residents reported that Miss Penunzi drove to work with Di Pietro in her car about 5 p. m. yesterday. Di Pietro, the Sheriff said he was told,
was a friend of the late Riziero Penunzi, Miss Nella Penunzi's father, and formerly boarded at the Penunzi home.

ST. LOUIS POST-DISPATCH

Founded by JOSEPH PULITZER

December 12, 1878

Published by
The Pulitzer Publishing Company
Twelfth Boulevard and Olive Street

THE POST-DISPATCH PLATFORM

I know that my retirement will make no difference in its cardinal principles; that it will always fight for progress and reform, never tolerate injustice or corruption, always fight demagogues of all parties, never belong to any party, always oppose privileged classes and public plunderers, never lack sympathy with the poor, always remain devoted to the public welfare; never be satisfied with merely printing news; always be drastically independent; never be afraid to attack wrong, whether by predatory plutocracy or predatory poverty.

JOSEPH PULITZER.

April 10, 1907.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I CANNOT overlook the opportunity (and responsibility) of expressing the opinion of an Illinois farmer concerning the attitude of certain bankers toward the Federal credit agencies. Particularly, I observed, in an item in your issue of May 29, that they suggest some of the loan business of these agencies be returned to private banks.

Sid Nirdlinger, president of the Illinois Bankers' Association, was quoted as saying that from 1929 to 1932 banks were liquidating their investments as rapidly as possible; the income of people had dropped sharply and many were being forced out of business unnecessarily; that the Government set up machinery to refinance these people, which was a proper procedure at the time; but that there is now some hesitation on the part of the Government agencies to liquidate, elaborate machinery having been set up; that the banks must now take over the business of these organizations, since they constitute one of the most serious threats to bank earnings.

On the opposite page of the paper from the above-mentioned item was another, stating that the First National Co. had obtained a $3,336,000 RFC loan, which was to be used, with cash on hand, for 36 percent payment on participating notes. This company, formerly the investment affiliate of the First National Bank of St. Louis, defaulted on principal and interest of the participations in May, 1933.

Is it to be concluded that big business wants to continue to keep those agencies which were developed by the previous as well as the present administration for its own benefit, and to remove the facilities available through those agencies that were set up to take care of the farmer in his credit requirements?

It occurs to me that bankers and commercial organizations have an idea that they should be accorded special consideration without regard to those of us who are interested in agriculture and who comprise a large element of our population. Both the land bank system and the production credit system have been a godsend to American agriculture. There was a need for them and there will be a need for them for many years to come. Bankers are generally collateral-minded. They lend money on financial statements and net worth. They have not considered liquidating possibilities in both long-term and short-term credit. It has been said that these systems have taught the banks how to analyze credit and the possibilities of farmers to repay it.

I sincerely feel that the progressive farmers who read your paper will concur in my thoughts, as there are over a quarter of a million of them who are using the facilities available through the production credit system. Since the system is just a little more than two years old, I feel that our biggest problem is one of letting the farmers know what they can do for themselves through it.

AN ILLINOIS FARMER.

Kewanee, Ill.

Disraeli and Senator Steiwer.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

BENJAMIN DISRAELI was a famous Liberal in his day, but overnight he changed his politics and became a rabid Tory. Called upon to address a meeting of Tories the following evening, he prefaced his speech with the following statement: "If there is one thing on which I pride myself in everything, it is my consistency." I am strongly inclined to Senator Steiwer.

PERIPATETIC.

Vacuity and Divisiveness.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

TO think that a great crowd of people should behave like a herd of sheep! The leaders of the Republican party ought to find some good argument besides the New Deal. To help us emerge from the depths of this era of hard times, the leaders of the party should give up mud-slinging and help devise something for the co-operation of all parties and creeds. Then the country should come through for its part of the great era that would follow.

It is impossible for a government of the people to survive the impending catastrophe if we are divided. Several international organizations are waiting for us. The United States is composed of 48 states—120,000,000 people—that should forget politics and parties and put their shoulders to the wheel as one; they should not be like sheep, led by the ram with the loudest baa.

The keynote speech of Mr. Steiwer at Cleveland did not tell the people or the delegates a thing that has not been showed down our throats a dozen times. In my opinion, the Republican party has a great leader in its ranks, but he is an enemy to the monopolies, so he will be left behind. The Democratic party has a leader in Franklin D. Roosevelt, but his hands have been tied, not by Congress or the people, but by the monopoly that the Republican leader, Senator Borah, wishes to fight. The people will have to disregard the loud baas and find a good, common-sense leader, then fight for him and believe in him.

J. G. L.

— AND COLONEL KNOX.

Appropriately enough, in a convention where newspaper publishers and editors filled the shoes of the Mark Hannas and Boies Penroses of an earlier day, the Republican national convention chose a newspaper publisher, Col. Frank Knox of the Chicago Daily News, as the party's candidate for Vice-President.

We do not undertake to say whether the man more to be felicitated is the newspaper publisher who took the nomination or the one-time publisher, Senator Vandenberg of Grand Rapids, Mich., who could have had the nomination but declined it.

But this much can be said: Col. Knox will add vigor to the campaign. He is, by all accounts, a first-class fighting man, in both a martial and a political sense. He made a sincere bid for first place on the ticket, and but for the adroitness with which his campaign was blanketed by the Landon movement, he would have been in the running down to the end. He will be no Throbbottom on the stump, or, if elected, in the vice-presidential chair.

Col. Knox has been considerably more anti-New Dealish in the past than the presidential nominee, Gov. Landon. He took the Chicago Daily News out against the Roosevelt administration when it was still in its honeymoon stage, and he has been raining lustrous blows on it ever since. His campaign speeches followed the same pattern. If he failed to arouse the Republican enthusiasm that came later to be centered on the Kansas Governor, this was due in large measure to the lack of that essential asset known as "availability." For Col. Knox, though of the Middle West, wore the coloration of the Eastern wing of the party. The fact that he was sponsored by former Senator Moses of New Hampshire identified him in the public mind—despite his Bull Moose background—as a conservative. His campaign for first place on the ticket received a severe blow when, although he carried his State of Illinois in the preferential primary last April, he was beaten outside of Chicago by Senator Borah. That result unquestionably added its bit to the force of the argument that John Hamilton and the other Landonites were making, namely, that if the party was not to throw away its chances, it must select a candidate acceptable to the Middle West. From the time that that argument began to prevail, the star of Knox, never a very effulgent one, declined. The battle was all over by the time the delegates assembled at Cleveland.

We reprinted on this page not long ago an article by the Chicago Daily News columnist, Howard Vincent O'Brien, about his boss, Col. Knox. It was a most engaging and candid piece, and it made our estimate of Col. Knox rise considerably from the level to which it had fallen by his advocacy of cash payment of the soldier bonus while denouncing the extravagance of the Roosevelt administration. We had thought that this support of the bonus, though qualified with the recommendation that the money be taken from the existing work-relief funds, was a surrender to expediency, and had said as much. That opinion remains. But, as we have said, we were impressed by the columnist's good opinion of Col. Knox as an employer and a journalist—an opinion which had weight because the writer went on to deal with his employer's political ambitions in the most realistic way. He believed that Col. Knox, if elected, would find it impossible to alter the course of government, but would be caught up and carried along by vast and complex forces beyond his control. He summed up his views in this way:

I am convinced that Frank Knox would be a good President, efficient and worthy of all trust; but I am equally convinced that as President he would do things that are utterly abhorrent to him now, and perforce leave undone practically all of the things he now advocates. Col. Knox has been denied the chance to test that prophecy. He has received, however, a consolation of great potential value. It was one F. D. Roosevelt, as we recall, who ran for the vice-presidency on the Cox ticket of 1920. Cox is forgotten, but look at Roosevelt! We do not suggest that history will repeat itself, but offer merely a word of good cheer to Col. Knox as he contemplates the road ahead of him.

He is a youngish man still—and so is Vandenberg.

A SCIENTIFIC MUSEUM FOR ST. LOUIS.

In this epoch of unparalleled scientific and technical achievements, it is a worthwhile achievement to assemble materials and mementoes that have a bearing on these outstanding factors in modern civilization. Such is the goal of the St. Louis Museum of Science and Industry, which was founded in January, 1934, and now has made a modest beginning in the quarters it occupies in the Old Courthouse. It is the start of an enterprise that, with proper support, in time will give St. Louis an institution akin to the Rosenwald Museum in Chicago.

Museums of this type serve not only to enlighten the present generation as to technical processes and their history, but to preserve for posterity objects showing our period's stage of progress. For demonstration of the mechanical arts, such displays are invaluable, for one working model of a device or a process is worth pages of description and charts. St. Louis has a history of scientific and industrial achievement worthy of preservation. The Museum of Science and Industry will fill a definite place in the city's field of education.

MOMENTARY LAPSE AT G. H. Q.

The functioning of the Democratic National Committee's machinery usually is without flaw or friction, but there were all the symptoms of crossed wires for a short while this week. The trouble developed when Missouri postmasters began receiving appointments as local chairmen of the "Roosevelt Nominators," a dollar-raising organization to benefit the party chest, and several of them declined to serve. Postmaster Leslie L. Travis of Joplin, for instance, said he was "too busy with other duties."

These refusals may have reminded Chairman Postmaster-General Farley that although postmasters get their appointments in the spoils-system manner, they are technically supposed to run their postoffices and not party errands, and some of them are individualistic enough to say so. Or it may have been decided that the spectacle of postmasters selling tickets to help finance the campaign would have given too much ammunition to those troublesome people who are forever insisting upon the merit system.

At any rate, it develops it was all a misunderstanding. Leading Democrats in the communities are being chosen, party headquarters explains, and some postmasters may be chance be among them. Whenever such an error as this is discovered, the postmaster is asked to name someone else to do the work. Quite understandable, except that G. H. Q. is general.

ly supposed to have files of party workers complete enough to indicate who is a postmaster and who isn't. The national committee got the machinery speedily under control, but not until the incident had provided another boost for the merit system.

GOV. LANDON'S INTERPRETATIONS.

Gov. Alf M. Landon's telegram to the convention offering "interpretations" of three of the platform planks was a demonstration of manliness. The "interpretations," at least so far as two of the planks are concerned, were, in reality, new planks. To call them "interpretations" was merely a tactful attempt to soften what was in reality a rebuke to the platform makers.

Their labor plank was not only weasel-worded but muddle-headed. It expressed a pious desire for the improvement in working conditions of women and children by the adoption of state laws and the belief that "this can be done within the Constitution as it now stands." Yet only a few days before, the Supreme Court, in the New York minimum wage case, said it could not be done within the Constitution as it now stands.

Gov. Landon could not let so silly a statement stand. In deference to the convention, he hoped that no constitutional change would be necessary, but if the convention's opinion should prove to be "erroneous," he proposed to advocate an amendment.

As vivid as its plank on labor was the convention's currency plank. To say, "We advocate a sound currency, to be preserved at all hazards," is to say nothing. A sound currency in the opinion, say, of Carter Glass, is quite different from a sound currency from the standpoint of Senator Borah.

Gov. Landon's "interpretation" is by comparison refreshingly frank. His notion of a sound currency is "a currency expressed in terms of gold and convertible into gold." He then goes on to take note of the difficulties of putting it into effect. At any rate, he did not flinch at the word "gold," as the platform makers did.

The third "interpretation," on extension of the merit system to include "every position in the administrative service below the rank of assistant secretaries of major departments and agencies, and that this inclusion should cover the entire Postoffice Department"—this is admirable. Where the platform is vague, his interpretation is specific. It is a pledge of the type from which there is no retreat short of outright repudiation.

The clause about the Postoffice Department, long shamefully used to reward political henchmen, regardless of merit, is especially significant. In it, too, may be read a pointed criticism of Mr. Farley, whose description of Mr. Landon as a Governor from a typical prairie State seems to have burrowed under the epidermis of the entire rank and file of the Republican party. Whether Mr. Farley was attempting an accurate description of Kansas or whether he meant his remark to be a veiled insult no longer matters. The latter is the construction placed upon it, and it has been viewed as a boomerang upon the author.

Altogether, the Landon telegram made a fine impression. Assuming it was a work of his own initiative, it is the first real glimpse we have had of his makeup.

BITS OF HEARTACHE, TOO.

The Republicans of Illinois had hardly deposed Frank L. Smith as the national committeeman when the Republicans of Ohio handed Walter Brown his hat—the hat, you may remember, which required a limousine when its owner was Postmaster-General. It isn't all cheers and hearty renewing of old friendships at a convention, with pretty women smiling their worshipful deference. Ever and anon, something like a tear glistens in a hard-boiled warrior's eye.

THE LANDONEERS.

They made him what he is today, and they surely did a swell job. A little while ago, Alfred M. Landon was unknown outside of his own State. Today, the Governor of Kansas is the Republican party's candidate for President, by the convention's unanimous choice, and public curiosity, if the news is a reliable barometer, is about equally divided between the nominee and the men who put him over with a bang heard 'round the world.

The Landoners are a newspaper group. Veteran Kansas publicists are mentioned, and younger editors whose renown is as yet confined to the "typical prairie State." And there is Roy Roberts of the Kansas City Star. At him the finger of print directly points.

The Landon movement, it seems, started at a dinner last October, with Roberts as host, several conspirators present and the Governor the guest of honor. As the stories go, Mr. Landon did not take the presidential prospect seriously. At the time, football was engaging his interest. But they persuaded him, finally, that he was a man of destiny, and then swung out on the circuit of persuading the Republican party that the Kansas was the leader the country was looking for, hoping for, praying for. How they did it is history, will become in time, we suppose, legend, and should election follow in November, here will be material for a saga. And mark this: Kansas has the epic poets to take care of that assignment in the best Homeric manner.

Who is Landon? Time must answer that question. Who is Roy Roberts, the Warwick of '36? In his innocent youth, he began studying politics in the University of Kansas, continued his course in the Kansas City Star, delved deeper into it as the Star's legislative reporter at Jefferson City, completed his education as a Washington correspondent, and, judging from the ride on which he took the country on the Landon bandwagon, Mr. Roberts has learned all about politics that can be taught.

MR. BORAH'S TRIUMPH.

In its Cleveland platform, the Republican party pledges that "America shall not become a member . . . of the World Court," one of the few fragments of triumph Senator Borah carried back to Washington. This is a reversal of the party's previous position, a disavowal of the efforts of three Presidents—Harding, Coolidge and Hoover—and a repudiation of the party's eldest statesman and, for so many years, its princeliest intellect—Elihu Root. What was it Theodore Roosevelt said of Elihu Root? "I would walk across the continent on my hands and knees to see him President." So Borah wins, and nobody will begrudge him his shabby trophy.

Some day, perhaps, St. Louis will decide the smoke nuisance is unconstitutional.

THE CIRCUS MOVES ON.

School vs. Crime

Because it can treat juvenile delinquency, the school is the logical leader in fight on crime, New York penologist says; urges use of facilities in evenings to keep students from undesirable company; thinks curriculum and textbooks should be vitalized to hold interest and more attention be paid to vocational training.

From an Address by Austin H. McCormick, Commissioner of Correction of New York City; Reprinted from News Bulletin of Osborne Association.

IN the fight on crime, the school is the logical leader because it is in a position to get directly at the roots of crime in juvenile delinquency. One of the most hopeful things about our present attempts to control crime is that we no longer think only of the grown criminal but of the future criminal who is now a child in our public schools. Crime prevention is being discussed from a more practical standpoint than ever before.

The school can do effective work in crime prevention by expansion of its physical resources. It is utterly inconsistent that one should walk down a city street and see an unlighted school auditorium or school gymnasium at the very hours when the lights of poolrooms, dance halls, cheap movie houses and undesirable hangouts are blazing most brightly. Our school buildings might well be for thousands of children an evening refuge from the dull and overcrowded homes whose atmosphere drives them into the street.

In more indirect ways, also, the school can work against juvenile delinquency. I am convinced that the usual public school curriculum has little reality or significance for tens of thousands of children, and that from this group the juvenile delinquents tend to come. If these children are to be required by law to remain in school until their middle teens, they should be given a type of education nearer to what they want and need.

Grinding them through grade after grade and stuffing them with facts which have little to do with their life interests is a process which creates problem children and problem adults. How to vitalize the public school curriculum is not a problem for the penologist but for the educator. As one who is in some degree a mixture of the two, however, I believe that one way to do it is to make vocational education more respectable and dispel as quickly as we can the impression that the child who transfers to the vocational course is a dumbbell and a lowbrow.

I do not mean that any child should be given a course which is purely vocational in nature. Any well-organized vocational course requires related training which goes over into the usual public school subjects, and these subjects become significant in the light of the vocational training. The vocational training program, moreover, should not be devoid of opportunities for the development of cultural and esthetic interests. There should be a school orchestra and a dramatic society in the vocational school as naturally as in the usual public school.

Another way to vitalize education is to keep life, vigor and honesty in the textbooks and other teaching material. It is dangerous to use "apt alliteration's artful aid," but I recently succumbed to it in a speech in Boston and criticized textbooks which are purged by patriots and punctured by public utilities.

The child of today cannot be prepared for the world of tomorrow by teaching him from textbooks that try to make him feel that we are still colonists shooting at the redcoats from behind stone walls, that the Japanese are a race of funny little people who spend most of their time feeding silk worms and devouring California babies, that Russia is a country to be mentioned only in a hushed whisper, that anybody who criticizes public utilities is a Bolshevik, and so on through all the flat, dull, juiceless pages from which the child is supposed to learn about the world in which he lives.

Finally, the teacher is the crux of the whole problem. Education cannot be handed out like wooden cigars, by a cigar-store Indian. Teachers must not only have native intelligence, a thorough education and sound professional training, but they must also have personality and the power to stimulate the minds of other human beings. We can kill personality and vigor by requiring too long a day's work, by imposing too heavy a teaching schedule, and by failure to establish special classes for retarded and problem children who need special handling. One problem child saps more teacher strength than all the rest of the class.

We can crush the personality of some teachers by telling them that they will be fired if they get married and of others by firing them because they get divorced. We can crush others by the force of religious or racial prejudices. We can destroy self-respect and a sense of intellectual freedom in some of the best of our teachers by such misguided legislation as that requiring loyalty oaths.

Today, as never before, leaders in the educational world are thinking in realistic terms. Thinking of this sort alone will make the school a more effective agency in the fight against juvenile delinquency and crime, a fight in which the school can play a part of ever-increasing importance.

AN INVENTION THAT FAILED.

Eldon Roarke in Memphis (Tenn.) Press-Scimitar. JOE CURTIS, veteran Commercial Appeal reporter, is an inventor. Thirty-two years ago, Joe, then in the employ of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, invented a mechanical newsboy. The boy was made of tin. With one hand he held a megaphone to his mouth, with the other he held a big tin suitcase.

His brains were a phonograph, which enabled him to holler: "All about the Russo-Japanese War! Read the Post-Dispatch! The Japanese lick the Russians!" Over and over the record played.

Shifts in Party Control

From Editorial Research Reports.

THE Landon forces were in complete ascendancy at the Cleveland convention. Concessions made to the "Old Guard" were less significant than the concessions given Senator Borah. So the Republican party is now controlled on the whole by the West instead of the East, and is dominated by a liberal or at least a middle-of-the-road approach to national problems, rather than by an ultra-conservative viewpoint.

The history of American politics shows that control of a political party is apt to shift after defeat, although this trend has not been invariable.

The oldest of the two major parties, the Democratic party, was organized and long led by Jefferson and his followers. The Jeffersonians were the radicals of their day. In 1824, Monroe wanted Secretary of the Treasury Crawford to succeed him, but a new radicalism in the form of Andrew Jackson had appeared on the Western horizon. Jackson got only a plurality and the election was thrown into the House of Representatives. The conservatives profited by the conflict between the liberal Monroviens and the radical Jacksonians, and managed to elect John Quincy Adams.

Adams was soon vanquished by Jacksonianism. But in 1840, Jackson's former lieutenant, Martin Van Buren, was defeated for re-election. Van Buren had begun to represent the East, and in 1844, Southern Democrats managed to defeat him for a third nomination, and gained the ascendancy with the nomination of Polk. Beaten in 1848 under Cass, candidate primarily of the West and the South, the Democrats came back in 1852 with Pierce, an Easterner satisfactory to the South on slavery. After the Northern Democrats forced the nomination of Buchanan in 1856, the party fell into disunity. Reunited in 1876 under Tilden, a political reformer, after defeat they turned in 1880 to Hancock, conservative. Again defeated, they won in 1884 under Cleveland, an Easterner politically to the Left, economically to the Right.

Cleveland's control of the party was taken over in 1896 by the Western radicals under Bryan. Defeated in 1896 and 1900, the Democrats in 1904, tried an Eastern conservative. After Parker's defeat, party control reverted in 1908 to Bryan, who in 1912 forced the nomination of Wilson, an Eastern liberal. Beaten under Cox, a Middle Westerner, in 1920, the Democrats turned to Davis, an Eastern conservative, in 1924; and in 1928 to an Eastern liberal opposed by the South. After Smith's defeat, the party nominated Roosevelt, an Easterner supported primarily by the South and the West.

When the Republican party was organized in 1856, it was considered a radical party. Lincoln's nomination over Seward in 1860 was the victory of the radical West over the conservative East. Surrendering the presidency for the first time in 1884, under Blaine of the East, the Republicans won in 1888 with Harrison, a Middle Westerner.

After Harrison's defeat in 1892, the Republican nomination stayed in the Middle West, with McKinley; but after losing in 1912 under Taft, a conservative Middle Westerner, the Republicans nominated Hughes of New York, who had the reputation of a progressive. After his defeat in 1916, the Republicans got behind Harding, a conservative of the Middle West.

Now, after defeat in 1932 behind a conservative representing primarily the Eastern viewpoint, the Republicans are trying out again a candidate more or less forced on the Eastern conservatives by the more liberal Middle Western wing of the party.

ANGLO-SOVIET PACT NEARLY COMPLETE

Compromise Will Be Dis-

Wednesday.

By the Associated Press.
LONDON, June 13.—A compromise between Great Britain and Soviet Russia, in which Russia's far eastern naval problem as it concerns Japan is tentatively worked out, was disclosed today.

In return for a British agreement to exclude Russia's fleet in the Far East from limitations in a proposed Anglo-Soviet naval treaty, Russia promised not to exceed British fleet tonnage there unless Japan exceeds them.

Russia thereby agreed in principle to abide in the Pacific ocean
with the limitation on navies already approved by the United States, Great Britain, and France,
providing Japan does not violate
these limitations.

The agreement was regarded as another step in the phrasing of the Anglo-Soviet pact, which was concluded March 24 by the United States, Great Britain and France.

The Anglo-Russian compromise,
now virtually completed, will be discussed at the next meeting of British and Soviet diplomats and experts on June 17.

Kehosuke Fujii, counselor of the Japanese Embassy in London, went to the Foreign Office with Japan's reply to Great Britain's note of May 6 asking for Japan's consent to a reduction of excess destroyers in the Pacific Navy.

These destroyers are above the limit specified in the London treaty.
Japan, it was understood, wants to retain both destroyers and submarines if the treaty is broken.

The United States has expressed opinion that the proposed treaty
the way to escape provisions of the treaty is through the legal escape clauses.

ST. LOUIS UNIT ORGANIZED BY TRANSPORTATION MEN

Purpose of Association Is to Op-

National Membership, 11,000.

A local branch of the Southwest
Chapter of the new Transportation Association of America was organized at a dinner last night at hotel Chase, attended by business and professional men, bankers and others, as part of a movement to oppose Government ownership of transportation agencies and formulate "a sound future national transportation policy."

It was announced that the association was of non-profit, non-partisan character, with a membership of 11,000 drawn from industry, finance, commerce, transportation and agriculture, and that it aims to consolidate the interest of all transportation agencies, including railroads, steamships, lines, trucks, buses and pipe lines.

Donald D. Conn of Chicago, executive vice-president of the association, was the principal speaker. He said there had been a drift toward "nationalization" of transportation since 1909, but that it was a sound policy of private control. He asserted that the association, incorporated in April, 1935, represented the first comprehensive effort to oppose Government ownership of transportation agencies.

included Samuel W. Fordyce, Ros-

SOVIET TO GRANT FREEDOM OF SPEECH

Official Paper Says Rights of Press and Assembly Also Will Be Guaranteed.

By the Associated Press.
MOSCOW, June 13.—An official interpretation of the new Russian Constitution declared today that Soviet working people have guarantees of greater freedom of speech, press and public manifestation than any other workers in the world.

Karl Radek, writing in the Communist party newspaper Pravda, asserted: "Even in democratic America, the bourgeoisie threatens to prohibit the circulation of the revolutionary workers' press
through the mails."

The new Constitution says the rights of Soviet workers will be assured by placing printing presses,
supplies of paper, public buildings,
streets and means of communication at the disposal of workers and their organizations.

"Nowhere under capitalism," said Radek, "could workers' rights be realized so completely."

"Even in those bourgeois countries where it seems there is considerable freedom of the press, the proletarian enjoys this freedom
only to the extent of his means to purchase printing paper and to pay the expenses of printing."

"The freedom of revolutionary workers' manifestations is restricted by assaults on meetings and the refusal to supply workers with meeting places."

Soviet democracy is "the only real democracy in the world," the official press declares.

"The mortal danger of a new war
hangs over the world as a monstrous crime of the bourgeoisie, which is sunk up to its ears in a swamp of bankrupt economy," Pravda says, and continues:

"Where is Germany's Reichstag?
Where is general suffrage in Italy?
Where is equality and freedom in

MISSISSIPPI GOVERNOR URGES
PUBLIC ENTERPRISE PROGRAM

Advocates Construction of Factories
With Taxes Levied for "the Public Welfare."

By the Associated Press.
GULFPORT, Miss., June 13.—
Gov. Hugh White proposed a five-point legislative program of public enterprise in private business for Mississippi last night.

Advocating the construction of factories with taxes levied for "the public welfare," the Governor said he was prepared to call the State Legislature in extraordinary session to enact into law his program for "balancing agriculture with industry."

Speaking at a banquet for the Mississippi Press Association, the Governor outlined a method whereby he said Mississippi towns and communities through legislative authority might build or acquire factories and buildings as an inducement to Eastern industries to come to this State.

CALCUTTA, India, June 13.—
Raj Bahadur Ramdas Bajoria, wealthy Marwari merchant, who declares he has had only 20 minutes of natural sleep in the last two

today for temporary relief and $100,000 for a permanent cure.

He expressed the hope that an American physician might cure his illness but fatalistically added: "It is too late for help to arrive. I will soon experience the blessedness of eternal sleep."

The merchant has rejected thousands of suggested cures because they con-

VETERANS ON RELIEF MUST USE BONUSES

600, to Be Dropped July 1,
Advised to Keep Budget Near Same Level.

About 600 veterans who are on the relief rolls are being notified
by the St. Louis Relief Committee that they will be dropped, effective July 1, and will be expected to use their bonus money for current living expenses "on a budget little higher" than the relief standard.

The current relief budget is $30
a month for the average family of four and $12.50 for single persons.
If veterans were required to use their bonus payments, averaging $500, strictly at the relief budget rate, the unmarried veteran would be expected to make the money last for 40 months, and the veteran with the average family for nearly 17 months.

W. C. Connett, chairman of the relief committee, was unable to estimate the number of persons affected by the order. There are about as many unmarried persons as there are families on the relief rolls.

Those veterans who have not found employment when their bonus money is exhausted may file
new applications for relief, Connett
said. The bonus bonds will be distributed Monday night.

If veterans are not personally known to one of the certifying postal employees on duty at the Certification Units through the city,
it will be necessary for them to have one or two identifying witnesses as to their identity and identity. Postmaster W. Rufus Jackson reiterated today.

In extreme cases when the postal employee is still in doubt as to the applicant's identity, he may require the applicant's fingerprints to be placed on the bond.

Identifying witnesses were requested to obtain identification cards, which have been mailed to all veterans, business and fraternal organizations by the Postoffice.

The witnesses must sign such a card, have it countersigned by the auditor unit and then present
it to the certifying unit for identification and approval. Witnesses were advised to become acquainted with one or more certifying postal employees or supervisors.

The auditor unit will open at 8:30 a. m. Tuesday, while all other units will open at 11 a. m. and close at 10 p. m. each day until further notice.

DEAF MUTES SPEAK NORMALLY IN TEST

Read Lips and Utter Words
They Have Never Heard, in Demonstration at Convention.

How those who have never heard a sound are trained to assume normal places in society,
ready to talk and to comprehend
the spoken word by means of lip-reading, was demonstrated yesterday before the Society of Progressive Oral Advocates at the opening of a two-day convention at Central Institute for the Deaf, 818 Kingshighway.

Dr. Max A. Goldstein, founder and director of the institute, internationally known authority in his profession, is president of the society. In his office yesterday were the assistant librarians of the Massachusetts State College at Amherst, and the research librarian
in the art department of the New York Public Library. They were in St. Louis to address the convention and to attend a reunion of
Dr. Goldstein's former pupils.

Neither of them, like others who appeared on the convention program, had heard since birth or had ever spoken a word before being trained at Central Institute. They left there prepared not only to conform but successfully compete with persons of normal hearing and speech. It is difficult as they discuss their affairs with former associates to realize that a sentence spoken when their eyes leave
the speaker's lips will go unheeded. It is more difficult to realize that they have never heard the sound of the words they utter.

Some College Graduates.
How this task of making the deaf "hear," is accomplished, of teaching them to utter sounds they never heard, was the subject of papers read by authorities in the field of speech instruction who came from other cities to the meeting. But the pupils and former pupils of Dr.
Goldstein's school provided the convincing proof. About 50 of the former pupils, many of whom are now in public schools or colleges, some already graduated with academic honors, attended the convention in a group.

The older pupils of the institute gave a play, "Daniel Boone." In costumes they made for themselves,
before dropping curtains they had painted, the properties of their own construction, they spoke their lines with attentive eyes on fellow actors' faces, so not a cue was missed. Then John Healy, the Massachusetts College librarian,
Ph. B. from the University of Chicago, read a paper on the deaf student at school, former secretary to the Mayor of Boston, read a paper:
"The Deaf and College Education."

Method of Using Tubes.
Four small pupils, from 8 to 10 years of age, demonstrated with
the use of tubes, the use of tubes, originated by Dr. Goldstein, the ends of which were placed in their ears in the manner of a stethoscope.
The other ends of the tubes were connected to a funnel held by the teacher, in which she spoke and into which the pupils replied. Some of the sound vibrations, it is thought, is apparent to the child.
They answered the questions put to them, in spelling, geography and arithmetic, with notable lack of self-consciousness.

Using the Sense of Touch.
The illustration of the use of touch
all sensory organs are modifications of the sense of touch. Dr. Goldstein with one of his pupils, deaf since birth, carried on a conversation with her as she stood, with eyes turned from his lips and her fingers on an ordinary megaphone through which he spoke. The vibrations of his voice transmitted to her finger tips, enable her to "hear." To carry the idea further, he stood behind another pupil, with his head a few inches from the back of her neck
and the vibrations of his voice transmitted to her head, enabled her to understand him. The demonstration when he held a piece of paper between his mouth and the subject's neck.

The meeting was opened by Charles Nagel, board member of the institute, who paid tribute to the work of Dr. Goldstein and the Institute in introducing the deaf "to a new world." Dr. Goldstein in the president's address, reviewed the accomplishments of the former pupils.

MOVE FOR NEW MILK INSPECTION ORDINANCE

Medical Society Health Group Asks Consumer's Council to Join Discussion Thursday.

St. Louis Medical Society's committee on Health and Public Instruction has asked the Consumer's Council to meet with the committee
Thursday morning at 10:45 o'clock
in the St. Louis Medical Society Building at 3339 Lindell boulevard to discuss proposing a new milk-inspection ordinance.

Dr. Dudley R. Smith, chairman of the committee, said the recent report of the Federal Trade Commission that milk and cream from unsupervised dairy farms had been distributed by St. Louis dairies revealed "a source of potential danger to health."

"It seems that the time has arrived," he said, "for the St. Louis Medical Society to again take an active part in seeing that we shall have the standard milk ordinance
for our community. It has proven effective in other communities and it is not too good for our own."

Dr. Brecked Favors It.
"About two years ago the St.
Louis Medical Society worked with the Health Commissioner to obtain a standard milk ordinance for St.
Louis. The Board of Aldermen passed a compromise ordinance without adequate grading provisions and without strength for enforcement."

"It was predicted at the time of passage that the compromise ordinance would not be effective in furnishing St. Louis with a healthful milk supply. According to this report of the Federal Trade Commission, this prediction has come true.
The report shows that St. Louis consumers run the risk of getting poor-quality milk and that consumption continues below minimum health standards."

Health Commissioner Joseph F.
Brecked will be present at the meeting Thursday to discuss the standard milk inspection ordinance. The ordinance, which Dr. Brecked favors, would contain provision for grading milk and would tax the industry to provide for 42 inspectors
instead of the 19 now working under the compromise inspection ordinance. A contract between the city and milk distributors who supply the money for inspection under the present ordinance will expire Dec. 1.

In its recent report the Federal Trade Commission said that several large St. Louis distributors had bought milk from unapproved sources which had the effect of depressing the price paid to farmers who have met the standards imposed by the St. Louis milk inspection ordinance.

RAIL RATE INCREASES EXTENDED SIX MONTHS

ICC Is Told Emergency Charges Have Increased Revenues $100,000,000 in Year.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, June 13.—Extension for six months of increased emergency freight rates was granted to railroads by the Interstate Commerce Commission yesterday.

Railroads had asked that the rates, due to expire at the end of this month, be continued indefinitely. They contended the rates had increased the income of a financially distressed transportation system more than $100,000,000 in a year.

Included in the modifications to the six-months' extension order were emergency charges on coal and iron ore. A 15 per cent surcharge on each ton of coal and coke was cut to 10 cents. The maximum surcharge on iron ore was lowered
from 10 to 8 cents per ton.

Emergency charges on unmanu-factured tobacco, woods and ores
and concentrates were removed,
and those on iron pyrites, stone,
pig iron and raw peanuts were reduced.

The majority of the commission in allowing the extension said they "were not convinced that the emergency charges constitute an undue burden upon the traffic upon which they are imposed or upon the shippers or receivers of such traffic."

They said the former increase
had "not prevented a material expansion in freight traffic" and that
"to continue them for a comparatively short period will add materially to the net revenues of the railroads without placing an undue burden on the shipping public."

The carriers were told "these charges cannot be regarded as a permanent remedy."

Commissioner Aitchison, joined by Porter and Tate, termed the extension "counter to the mandates
of the Interstate Commerce Act." Aitchison contended that the increase, even "if lawful, will defeat
an avowed purpose by making the rail carriers more vulnerable to competition, without even temporarily bettering their real position."

The dissent termed the expected increase of $100,000,000 in revenue
"wholly illusory," saying there had been definite evidence the higher rates drove business from the railroads to competing agencies of transportation.

RAIL UNIONS ON STATE RIGHTS Official Organ Warns Labor Not to Be Deceived.

WASHINGTON, June 13.—Six railroad unions in their official organ warned labor yesterday to beware to the cry of "states' rights."
"American workers should not be deceived by this gesture," said in the weekly, Labor. "It comes from the men who applauded the Supreme Court when it slaughtered railroad pensions, farm relief, the NRA and similar progressive legislation which gave American producers something of a square deal."

COMMODITY MARKET INDEX AVERAGES

In the Usual Week-End Dealings, a Number of Issues Push Up Fractions to Around 2 Points.

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, June 13.—The Stock Market trading centered in utility, rubber and specialty securities today, virtually neglecting most other parts.

In the usual quiet summer week-end dealings, a number of issues pushed up fractions to around 2 points. Further mild profit taking was noted here and there. The close was fairly firm. Transfers were around 350,000 shares.

Consolidated Gas was a relatively active performer on the upside, further reflecting the company's latest refunding move.

Celanese and Industrial Rayon were especially in demand on reports of a near-by advance in rayon yarn prices. Goodyear, Goodyear, Goodyear and United States Rubber exhibited strength following announcement of a reduction in shipping rates for the raw commodity from Singapore to New York.

Among the popular stocks were J. I. Case, Allied Chemical, Columbia Gas, United Corporation, North American, Chrysler, Corn Products, American Telephone and Radio. The rails, steels and merchandising issues were little better than steady.

Bonds were somewhat irregular, foreign gold currencies improved in terms of the dollar.

While France's labor troubles appeared to be clearing up, most banking quarters believed the Republic's financial situation is more temperate than ever. Many stock traders, consequently, were inclined to watch developments in this sector rather than extend commitments.

Market analysts who lean to the buying side bolstered their arguments with figures showing that there were 64 favorable dividends this week against 40 the week before. The latest total was the largest for any week since last December.

Recent strength of some of the mail order shares was explained, in part, by the governmental estimate that rural retail trade in May was up 1.5 per cent over the same 1935 month.

Wheat ended 1/2 to 3/4 of a cent a bushel higher and corn was unchanged to 1/4 cent firmer. Cotton was unchanged to 1/4 cent firmer. Sterling was off 1/4 of a cent at $50.24 and the French franc moved up 1/4 of a cent at 65.9 cents.

Overnight Developments.
The action of the I. C. C. in extending most of the emergency freight surcharges was about in line with expectations. While railroad officials pleaded for a ruling making the rates permanent, few were said to have believed this would be done.

Several of the carriers stand to lose by the reduction in soft coal charges. Chesapeake & Ohio, it was estimated, will suffer an earnings cut of about $150,000 in the latter half of this year on a movement of some 30,000 tons. The lowering of ore surcharges, it was said, will also deplete Great Northern's operating revenues this year by some $180,000.

Interest was shown in the report of General Motors that its overseas sales in May were 13.9 per cent ahead of the same 1935 month.

SENECA C. TAYLOR DEFENDS HIS ACTS AS MOON RECEIVER

Creditors in Court Allege
He Tried to Continue Motor Car Business, Resulting in Loss.

HE DENIES SALES
MEANT OPERATION

Objectors to Final Report
Say Assets Had Book

Seneca C. Taylor, receiver for the Moon Motor Car Co. for more than four years before his removal by the court at his own request in March, 1938, was called on to defend his conduct as receiver yesterday when questioned before Circuit Judge John W. Joynt by attorneys for creditors who object to his final report.

The objecting creditors, who stand to get less than one cent on the dollar on their claims, assert that the firm had assets with a book value of $2,442,881 when Taylor was appointed receiver in 1930, but the successor receiver, who has completed liquidation of the business, has only about $25,000 to distribute among creditors.

They attribute this situation to the fact that Taylor tried to operate the business instead of liquidating it soon after his appointment, and ask that Taylor be charged with the $244,000 lost, the creditors assert, because he kept automobile parts so long that they lost most of their value.

Taylor denies that he operated the business, and asserts that various Circuit Court Judges who at one time or another had jurisdiction of the receivership directed him to retain assets of the company in the hope of more favorable market conditions.

Questioned by Robert Burnett, attorney for George P. Dorris, the successor receiver, Taylor agreed that after he became receiver he ordered the assembly and sale of 10 automobiles, but said this did not constitute operation of the business. The parts were available, he said, and he chose that method of disposing of them.

Employment of 10 watchmen for the company's plant at 4400 North Main street at weekly salaries of $35 was another item questioned by the creditors. Three of the watchmen, Taylor said, were nephews of his wife.

The watchmen, Taylor said, had other duties to perform and were necessary employees.

The creditors object also to Taylor's claim against the $25,000 in the hands of the present receiver for $7500, representing the unpaid balance of a $15,000 fee allowed to him as receiver in May, 1931, six months after his appointment.

Taylor, an attorney, was only witness heard yesterday. He was removed as receiver at his own request, because of illness. The hearing will be resumed Tuesday.

New York Policeman Wins Dismissal of Separation Suit Which Was Never Tried.

NEW YORK, June 13.—Policeman Valentine R. Raynor paid his wife a separation allowance of $8 a week for 28 years without any legal obligation to do it, it was disclosed yesterday when he appeared before Supreme Court Justice Louis A. Vaheing in a move to clear up the court record. Mrs. Raynor filed suit for separation, but the case was never docketed for trial. Raynor moved to dismiss it for lack of prosecution.

Said Justice Vaheing: "While I am granting the motion to dismiss I am doing so with a strong hope, if not confidence, that he (the husband) will continue to make remittances to his wife in vindication of the opinion which the court on the whole has formed of his basic sense of honor."

Raynor had refrained from taking any action until his child was past maturity. The wife, Mrs. Georgia Kaynor, now living in Columbus, O., said she thought her suit entitled her to the money she had been getting.

Shassere pursued and captured Bretzler, who ran away after the accident. Police reported the truck had been taken without permission from in front of the owner's establishment at 1604 North Ninth street. Bretzler was charged with drunken driving and driving a motor vehicle without the owner's consent.

MO. PAC. SETTLES $4,242,775 TAX CLAIM FOR $900,000

Judge Moore Approves Settlement Agreed to by Commissioner of Internal Revenue.

Settlement for $900,000 of Federal income tax claims of $4,242,775 against the Missouri Pacific Railroad and a subsidiary, the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico, was approved yesterday by United States District Judge George H. Moore, in whose court the Missouri Pacific's reorganization proceedings are pending.

The compromise settlement was agreed to by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue at Washington whose office made the tax assessments, claiming deficiencies in the income tax payments of the railroads for various years from 1920 to 1930. Guy A. Thompson, trustee for the Missouri Pacific in the pending bankruptcy reorganization proceedings, informed the court of the compromise.

The claims against the Missouri Pacific aggregated $3,102,194, itemized by years as follows: $1,662,277 for 1920, $62,572 for 1921, $258,410 for 1924, $56,847 for 1925, $192,819 for 1926, $696,396 for 1928, $161,687 for 1929 and $11,182 for 1930. These were settled for $600,000. The claims against the subsidiary, aggregating $1,140,582 and settled for $300,000, were as follows: $263,034 for 1920, $98,624 for 1921, $52,629 for 1922, $152,885 for 1923, $460,864 for 1924, $91,986 for 1928 and $20,538 for 1929. Interest was included.

The only objection to the settlement was by Allen C. Orrick, attorney for a New York holder of bonds of a Missouri Pacific subsidiary. He contended the taxes should not be paid with funds accumulated under the trusteeship, but Judge Moore overruled his objection.

MOTION TO DISMISS SUIT OF LAWYERS FOR DAMAGES

Gerritzen Alleged to Have "Contemptuously Refused" to Give Depositions in Case.

A motion was filed today with Circuit Judge Russell, to dismiss the suit of A. F. Gerritzen and his brother, Leo W. Gerritzen, lawyers, against the National Lead Co., claiming damages of $330 because the company settled occupational disease claims of two of their clients without the knowledge of the lawyers.

Dismissal was asked because the Gerritzens "contemptuously refused" to give depositions at a hearing set for last Wednesday. The lawyers objected to giving testimony, they said, because newspaper reporters were present. They also said the notary who served them was not the one present for the depositions.

The company settled with two clients for $2800 and $1500, respectively, and the lawyers contend they are entitled to as much as their clients since they had contracts under which they were to receive 50 per cent of the amount of the judgment obtained.

SEEKING WAY TO MEET ILLINOIS RELIEF CRISIS

Officials Discuss Outlook When State Throws Task Back on Townships.

Methods of administering and financing unemployment relief in Illinois under existing legislation after July 1, when the 1500 townships in the State are scheduled to take over individually the task of raising relief funds and setting up administrative machinery, were outlined yesterday at Edwardsville by Leo M. Lyons, executive secretary of the Illinois Emergency Relief Commission, speaking before a gathering of public officials from 11 Illinois counties.

The State legislators, county relief administrators, and especially the township Supervisors who are to assume the function of relief administrators after July 1, expressed grave apprehension at the prospect of turning relief over to the townships when Lyons pointed out that the inescapable responsibility for aiding the unemployed would be placed solely on the supervisors and that available funds would be far less than half of the amount necessary for even bare subsistence allowances.

The State relief commission and its 102 county branches which now administer aid is to be abolished, save for a skeleton State body, which will continue to function as an agency to determine township relief needs and recommend the amounts of their monthly allocations to the State Auditor of Public Accounts, who will pro-rate available funds to the townships.

Lyons said that about $2,000,000 was needed each month to care for the 150,000 relief families in Illinois, but that after July 1, a total of only $2,000,000 would be available, coming from the 1-cent allocation out of the States 3-cent sales tax. A measure pending before the Legislature would increase the allocation to 1 1/2 cents, thereby adding $1,000,000, Lyons explained. He added, however, that Gov. Homer opposed the measure because its passage would create a deficit in the budget.

He explained that before any township could share in the sales tax, its town board must meet in July and levy a property tax of 30 cents on the $100 valuation. Townships failing in this will, like all others, receive a proportionate share of the sales tax until Sept. 30, but after that will be left to their own resources. Whether bonds or anticipation warrants shall be issued against this levy was the sole concern of the townships, Lyons said. He urged action early in July, however.

The townships, Lyons emphasized, might spend their money any way they see fit, except that no State money might be spent for administrative purposes. The township may fix the amount of the budgets, give cash or requisitions, and hire and fire at will, being required only to submit to periodic audits of its accounts.

Crisis in July.
A crisis would occur in the first part of July, he said. Allocations from the sales tax cannot be distributed until July 25, and meanwhile it will be up to the townships to finance relief somehow between July 1 and 25.

In the discussion that followed Lyons' speech, several supervisors said their counties were too weak financially to sell tax anticipation warrants against the 30-cent levy, while others said fiscal arrangements would not permit the levy until late in the year. Admitting that State funds would be far from adequate, Lyons reminded the supervisors their financial troubles were not the concern of the State Commission.

The township of East St. Louis offers an example of the predicament in which many others find themselves, according to Lyons. The monthly cost of relief, based on an average for the last six months, is $63,485, and the average budget for a family of 3.3 persons $20, although the full budget, when there is no shortage of funds, is $37.50. After July 1, the estimated monthly allocation from the sales tax will be $21,162, and from the 30-cent levy, assuming 100 per cent collection, $12,500, making a total of $33,662 for each month. This is about half the amount necessary to give relief, even on the reduced scale.

Lyons said that many townships in Illinois were appealing to Gov. Homer to increase appropriations for relief.

SHIP BURNS AT DOCK; 27 HURT

Some Men Seriously Injured In Blaze at Valencia, Spain.

VALENCIA, Spain, June 13.—Twenty-seven dock workers and sailors were burned, some seriously, in a spectacular blaze aboard the Norwegian freighter Roald Jarl yesterday. The fire broke out in eight tons of celluloid waste on deck. Flames soon leaped 100 feet in the air and the fire spread rapidly through a cargo of raw rubber.

The blaze spread to the English freighter Pelago, lying alongside, but was quickly extinguished. The Norwegian ship was severely damaged before the fire was brought under control.

NYE SAYS LANDON PLATFORM DISAPPOINTS PROGRESSIVES

Asserts It Is Most Likely to Attract Reactionary Support in the East.

CLEVELAND, O., June 13.—Senator Gerald P. Nye of North Dakota said yesterday the platform on which Gov. Landon will campaign for the presidency "is a keen disappointment to Progressives."

"Before the ink was dry," Nye said, "Gov. Landon found it necessary to amend the document, but its omissions and defects have not been cured."

"The platform is more likely to attract reactionary support in the east than to regain for the party its progressive backing in the prairie states. Old Guard leaders, retired from the Senate since 1932, sat as members of the Resolutions Committee and dominated its proceedings on major issues."

"Farmers and wage-earners will find little in the platform to aid in the practical solution of their problems."

"The single sentence devoted to public utilities will be wholly satisfactory to the power trust."

EX-CONVICT ADMITS KILLING OIL STATION MAN IN HOLDUP

Omaha Prisoner Says Council Bluffs Victim "Talked Too Much" in Auto.

OMAHA, Neb., June 13.—Police Capt. Robert Heller said today that Allen Wheaton, 19 years old, former inmate of the South Dakota State prison, had told him he robbed a Council Bluffs (Ia.) filling station of $18 and drove off with the attendant, Henry Plummer.

"The man talked all the time," Heller quoted the prisoner. "He told me he could pick my picture out of a thousand. Then I shot him and threw him out."

A first degree murder charge was filed in District Court, at Council Bluffs against Wheaton. County Attorney Robert B. Organ of Council Bluffs said the death penalty would be sought.

The killing, Thursday night, was at first attributed to Lawrence de Vol and two criminals who fled with him last Sunday from the St. Peter State Asylum in Minnesota.

GIRL SENTENCED TO 5 YEARS PAROLED IN EXTORTION PLOT

Rosemary Sankers, 18, Pleads Guilty to Charge of E. P. Adler, Davenport Publisher.

DAVENPORT, Ia., June 13.—Judge W. W. Scott sentenced Rosemary Sankers, 18 years old, to serve five years in the reformatory and then paroled her yesterday after the girl pleaded guilty of attempting to extort money from E. P. Adler, Davenport publisher.

Judge Scott continued the case of Marie Dumond, 16, who Miss Sankers said induced her to telephone Adler that he had better meet a "woman in green" at the theater "or the same thing will happen to you what happened in Chicago." Miss Dumond denies Miss Sankers' statement, but police said she went to the theater at the appointed time wearing a green dress.

ILLINOIS VIEW OF STREAM POLLUTION

New U. S. Resolution on State Control Not Necessarily Binding, Official Says.

By the Associated Press. SPRINGFIELD, Ill., June 13.—Conservation Director Charles F. Thompson has announced the congressional resolution signed this week by President Roosevelt and intended to enable 14 states to set up stream regulations "would not affect Illinois unless the State wanted it to."

The director said the Federal Government has no control over a State's streams except where navigation is concerned.

The resolution is intended to enable the states to conserve and regulate the flow and purify the water of all streams by permitting two or more states in a drainage basin to draw up compacts.

"Illinois for years has co-operated with neighboring states in stream regulation," Thompson said. C. W. Klassen, chief sanitary engineer for the public health department, said Illinois and six other states had been in a voluntary Ohio River interstate stream conservation agreement since 1926. Illinois also was a party to the Great Lakes drainage basin sanitation and the upper Mississippi River sanitation agreements, he said.

Jirka Gives Results of Illinois Sewage Work, Stream Reclamation.

Special to the Post-Dispatch. ELGIN, Ill., June 13.—Dr. Frank J. Jirka, director of the State Health department, today spoke before the annual convention of the Illinois Association of Sanitary Districts on the application of scientific methods to municipal and industrial waste disposal and the reclamation of streams and other sources of water supply.

The control over waste disposal has resulted not only in a great improvement of sanitation but has led to the recovery of valuable by-products, he said. Many of the sewage treatment plants recover gas sufficient to heat the plants and operate their engines while one manufacturing concern invented a new waste disposal device that has valuable commercial potentialities, Dr. Jirka pointed out.

"Industrial waste products that formerly poisoned Illinois streams, have been reduced by 75 per cent within three years," he declared. "The volume of municipal sewage that is treated before being discharged into streams has doubled with the prospects that no significant volume of untreated sewage will be emptied into streams after 1938."

The director said that since 1925 the number of sanitary districts in the state has increased from 13 to 25; municipal sewage treatment plants went up from 150 to 210; the downstate population served by sewage treatment facilities went up from 700,000 to 2,000,000 and every municipality along the entire course of the Fox River in Illinois except one has a sewage treatment plant compared with none a decade ago. Similar progress, he said, has been made along the Rock River.

TRAVEL STYLES FOR SUMMER VACATIONISTS Are Adapted to Modern Transportation

Today (Reg. U. S. Pat. Off.) Landon and Knox. The Russian Let Down. Not Working Is Easy. Best Shakespeare Book.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE.
(Copyright, 1936.)

OL. KNOX of Chicago is chosen to run for Vice-President, with Gov. Landon for President. The ticket has an advantage that advertisers appreciate, in having a short name.

In "Landon and Knox" there are one-third fewer syllables than in Roosevelt and Garner. A short title is a good title. Some intelligent advertisers deliberately cut off one-half or more from the name of their article advertised.

The "mahout" is the gentleman who sits just back of the elephant's forehead, controlling him with a sharp metal hook. You can imagine Gov. Landon, the new "mahout" of the Republican elephant, saying to that reluctant pachyderm, "Get this, Bolivar, you are going to travel in a new direction, several new directions, in fact."

Russian Sovietism came quickly, and might go quickly; signs of breakdown are seen already. Those who do more and better work get special rewards; engineers, chemists, scientists occupy fine apartments compared with ordinary workmen. That is hardly "straight Communism." Now Russia will have a constitution and Houses of Parliament, important steps in the direction of conservatism.

Russia has been digging out much gold, is getting rich; when men get rich they become conservative.

Stalin wears a workman's smock; his successor, as ruler of Russia, will probably wear a crimson cloak, lined with ermine or black sable, and perhaps a metal helmet with a spike on top. Human nature changes slowly.

Some citizens, told that the world owes them a living, food, rent, pocket money included, take it seriously.

At Montville, N. J., a gentleman, 38 years old, with wife and young children, declined indignantly to take a job on the highway, saying: "I want relief; they told me anyone could have relief who wanted it, and I want relief."

In addition to the job on the road, he was offered food orders for his family, but declined. On his declaration that he would rather "rot in jail" than take the job offered, he was put in jail to try it for 30 days; others feel the same way about work.

The best book on Shakespeare was written by George Brandes, a Jewish student, born in Denmark. If you read that book, called "William Shakespeare, a Critical Study," you will know, concerning Shakespeare, nearly all that is known.

Not to know him is to be on the level with the Galapagos turtle, only lower, because the turtle cannot read.

Brandes amusingly rips to pieces the ignorant statement that Shakespeare's works were written by Bacon. To say that proves that you haven't read Shakespeare or Bacon with any intelligence.

Bacon edited every line carefully; wrote his most important work in Latin, because he thought the English language would not last. Shakespeare never read a proof, thought little of his fame. When he died at 52, the age at which Napoleon died, his wife, who could not read, threw away all his papers, or sold them for waste. No one knows what was lost then. But for two of his actors, 13 of his plays would have been lost, forever.

Each of us should read some lines of Shakespeare every day and read some of the lines a thousand times. Start with "Macbeth," "Hamlet," "King Lear" and "The Tempest," and you will never stop.

Before he was 50, Shakespeare abandoned London and went back to his boyhood home, there to wait, a little while, for "gray hairs and a quiet grave."

Hollywood would find a Shakespeare scenario in Brandes; and the necessary "romance element" in Little William, seven-year-old son of Mistress Davenant, who had known Shakespeare in London and kept the Inn where he stopped overnight, when he rode his horse back to Stratford.

According to Brandes, the boy, "now seven years old, possessed a certain, perhaps accidental resemblance of features to Shakespeare."

Saturday Slow Motion Pictures

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

OUR tips are being spoiled at the finish line by those official cameras. Too many of our choices have been taken in group pictures.

On the racetrack there ain't any use going back any further than third. We've been in the money. But, like a mouse in a cash register, it didn't do us any good.

Our suggestion to put a night bell on the judges' stand was overruled. Our hot tip for the seventh race finished late. It was so dark when he came in that only the owls saw him.

Our jockeys are getting a bit too sociable. Strangers are thumbing rides in the back stretch. In the steeplechase the jumpers wore blankets. On these blankets were the words, "No riders." That's the way the jumpers finished.

If you waited for some of our hot selections to finish you would get pictures in the mail. Our favorite in the sixth race was Busted Banjo. He finished seventh, but took such a good picture he got offers from Warner Brothers, Paramount and Twentieth Century.
